RECOGNITION

1. 2009 HIGH SCHOOL MODELS OF EXCELLENCE AWARD – CTE'S "CAREER BUILDING MATH" PROGRAM

Introduction: Mike Jones, Assistant Superintendent, Educational Services

Background Information: The High School Models of Excellence Program was initiated by the Educational Services division within RCOE to locate exemplary programs that can be replicated and to share these validated programs with other county high schools. The Program was designed to also recognize local individual programs, as opposed to total school efforts, that could be documented through data to have made a significant impact on students.

The RCOE operated "Career Building Math" program used a CTE context, specifically Construction Technology, to teach math concepts. Because of student need, the course focused on CAHSEE and Algebra Readiness math standards. The curriculum was standards-based and was developed by aligning the math standards and the construction standards. Students earned 10 math credits and received a certificate verifying specific construction technology competencies. The class was both conceptual and skills based, and it maximized the use of manipulative and problem-solving strategies. A two person team, made up of one math teacher and one construction teacher, worked closely together to teach the class. The class was offered at both a regional learning center and a comprehensive high school. The students were selected because they were struggling with math and/or were math credit deficient. The student population was made up of both regular education and alternative education students. Because of the success of the program, those involved are eager to help others replicate the program or modify it to other situations while preserving certain essential elements, e.g., contextualized learning, integrated curriculum, team teaching.
