Graciela Tiscareño-Sato is a bilingual social entrepreneur, advocate and mother of three, including a thriving, literate teenager born severely prematurely (who just happens to be blind, hearing-impaired and epileptic). Graciela's work as an award-winning educational publisher, author and motivational speaker focuses on storytelling to showcase to the world what's possible – and what's been achieved when students are surrounded by communities with high expectations. Before motherhood, Graciela served as an officer and aviator for a decade with the U.S. Air Force after graduating from U.C. Berkeley as an Air Force ROTC scholarship cadet.
