Instruction/Motivation

Students will make a recording of no more than two minutes, where they answer three questions, posed by the parent or teacher leader.

Procedure

1. Explain to the student that you are going to make a short video of them, answering questions you ask about what it's like to stay at home.
2. Ask them the following three questions:
 - a. Why is everyone being asked to stay at home right now?
 - b. What activity do you really like to do, while at home?
 - c. What are you looking forward to being able to do, once everyone is back to their regular day?

Then, ask them to send out a greeting to a friend or loved one, who will view the recording.

3. After you have gone through a practice run of the questions, decide where you would like to have them do their interview. Decide where they will sit, consider the background and lighting of the space, and try to eliminate background noise of radio, tv, pets, clocks and heat or a/c.
4. Do the interview again, and record your questions and their answers and greeting. Play it back for them to watch.
5. Have them select a recipient for their interview and share it via email or text.

Closure

Ask the student:

- Did you enjoy talking about your experiences with staying home?
- Did you include your favorite at home activity?
- Do you think your video will help others to understand how you're feeling?

Evaluation

- Was the student able to answer each question clearly?
- Did they share what their interests are, while at home?
- Were they able to convey how they feel about the situation, via a recorded interview?
